THE WEATHER IN THE SOUTH.

RELIEVED FLORIDA ORANGE BELT HAS ESCAPED DAMAGE.

Force of Cold Wave Broken. Two Men in Chattanooga and one in St. Louis Frozen. Two Negroes Faint from the Cold.

Atlanta, Dec. 16.—It is believed that the cold wave which has held the Central South tight in its grasp for the past thirty six hours has been broken. In many cases the coldest temperature recorded last night broke all records for this month. In Atlanta two deaths, which are attributed to the cold, both the victims being negroes, were reported to the police. The police gave permission Sunday for coal and wood yards to open and serve the suffering public.

The temperature at 4 o'clock this morning was 9 degrees above zero, the coldest recorded for December since 1882. Freezing temperatures are reported this morning as far south as Jacksonville and from 6 to 16 degrees below freezing in Southern Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana. The Florida orange belt is believed to have escaped damage as a temperature of 40 degrees is reported from middle Florida, and 64 degrees at Key West.

Increasing cloudiness is forecasted for the Central and Southern Gulf States.

RECORD BROKEN IN MOBILE.

Mobile, Dec. 16.—The coldest weather ever experienced here in December was that early this morning, the thermometer at the custom house registering 16 degrees.

TWO DEATHS IN CHATTANOOGA.

Chattanooga, Dec. 16.—The coldest ever known in this section before Christmas continues unabated. The mercury stood at 8 degrees this morning. Two deaths from freezing are reported.

Tennessee river flood service reports a tide of 27 feet this morning. It will reach the danger line tomorrow.

BELOW ZERO IN CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati, Dec. 16.—The thermometer registered two degrees below zero during the night, and stood at zero at 7 a. m. The unprecedented rise in the hands of the Ohio river continues.

EDITOR IN ST. LOUIS FROZEN.

St. Louis, Dec. 16. Joseph J. Novak, editor of the Bohemian Voice, has been frozen to death.

LOUISIANA CROPS ARE SAFE.

New Orleans, Dec. 16.—The coldest weather this season and the coldest in many years was experienced Sunday and today. The government thermometer showed 26 yesterday and 24 today. Early warm winds enabled the planters to guard against serious damage to their crops.

THREE NEGROES FOUND FROZEN.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 16.—Three negroes have been found frozen to death near Canton, Miss., since Saturday night. The cold is beyond precedent for this time of the year.

LINE STEAMERS BEHIND TIME.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 16.—The temperature here has fallen fifty one degrees since Saturday. The cold wave brought with it a snow storm which raged five hours. Incoming vessels report terrible weather at sea and all the regular liners are behind time.

The name of the three masters reported ashore off Hatteras is still unknown. Considerable lumber was washed ashore today. The life saving crew stands ready to go to her aid, but there are no signs of a crew on board.

Get the Almanac that Predicted the Galveston Storm.

The Ladies' Birthday Almanac for 1902 is being distributed in our city this week. This publication achieved great prominence in September by its accurate prediction of the Galveston storm. The New York Times Sept. 13th, said: "Galveston's disastrous storm was predicted with startling accuracy by the weather prophet, Andrew Jackson DeVoe, in the Ladies' Birthday Almanac issued in Chattanooga, Tenn., last January." It is so different from the ordinary cheap patent medicine almanac, that it has become very popular, and now has a circulation of 15,000,000 copies, annually. Our readers who have not received a copy of the 1902 edition, can get it from their merchant or by sending their address to the Ladies' Birthday Almanac, Chattanooga, Tenn.

CARNEGIE'S GIFT

A TRUST SCHEME?

OFFICIALS FEAR ACCEPTANCE MAY BE GOVERNMENT'S HAND.

Endowment to be Made Shortly to Secure the Right of Corporation and Possession of This May Day from Action Against the Trust Carnegie's Plan Long Considered.

Washington, Dec. 12.—It is not to be assumed that there is to be an on- and off-hand acceptance by Congress of the offer of Mr. Andrew Carnegie to give $10,000,000 for the endowment of a national university in Washington under the direction of the federal government.

It is a tradition of the government that as much care must be exercised in the acceptance of gifts as in the making of appropriations. The full details of this offer by Mr. Carnegie will be held for the reason, it is said, that the President proposes to lay the matter before Congress and does not want to be anticipated by a publication of the entire plan. It is learned, however, from those who profess to know all about it, that the endowment is to be made in security of the steel trust. This will, probably, supply a reason for opposition in Congress to the acceptance of the gift.

Much has been said in Congress on the subject of this trust. Mr. J. W. Babcock of Wisconsin, who is a Republican member of the ways and means committee, introduced a bill in the Fifty-sixth Congress to put products in competition with this trust on the free list as a measure for the restraint of dangerous trusts.

Should the United States government accept an endowment of an institution to be controlled by it $10,000,000 of securities of this trust, it might be held thereafter to be a party at interest, barred from the prosecution of the steel trust under the anti-trust law or equally guilty if the method of doing business is contrary to public policy.

The matter will be very carefully looked into before Congress accepts the gift, and it may be that some men in Congress will publicly resist the offer.

The proposed gift is in furtherance of the plan suggested 100 years ago by President Washington. At the Cabinet meeting today the President laid before its members the letter from Mr. Carnegie containing proposal, and suggested that some definite form of acceptance by Congress should be recommended, and this, it is expected, will be forwarded for appropriate action some time before the holiday recess, if Mr. Carnegie has drawn up his proposition by that time for presentation. During the Cabinet session it was developed that the propriety of accepting the gift was not seriously considered. As understood here, the donation is not definitely fixed at $10,000,000, but this sum is named as the amount Mr. Carnegie believed might be sufficient, although should the scope of the plans become wider it was the opinion of those interested in projecting such a work for years the sum probably will be increased.

About two weeks ago Mr. Carnegie visited the President and luncheon with him, and during this meeting the subject was talked over and the President for the first time learned of Mr. Carnegie's desire to establish a great seat of learning at the nation's capital. His plan, as outlined to the President, was for a university under government auspices and managed by a board of regents somewhat similar to that appointed to conduct the Smithsonian Institution, only larger, and including, besides, eminent men of learning, scientists and representatives from the legislative branches of the government. He believed that the various scientific bureaus of the government might become adjuncts to the proposed university, where students might have the benefit of advances made by these offices in all branches of science. The proposed gift has been a secret with the President, and Cabinet, and it was not intended it should become known until duly communicated to Congress for action.

What Mr. Carnegie proposes to accomplish has been the dream for years of ex-Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont, and had the enthusiastic support of Senators George F. Hoar and Henry C. Lodge. Mr. Edmunds many years ago introduced in successive Congresses bills for carrying out Washington's ideas, but they scarcely reached the stage of committee consideration. From the agitation of the subject grew the Washington Academy of Sciences, which sought to conserve all the interests striving for the establishment of such a university, and under this influence the co-operation of leading educators of the country was secured. It is believed through this Mr. Carnegie's attention was directed to the thought of giving the nation a magnificent institution of learning located in Washington City.

SENATOR McLAURIN RICKS.

No Excuse for Expanding Himself to Tillman and Jones' Tremendous Flocks.

[Augusta, Chronicle.]

Why Senator McLauren should have placed himself voluntarily in such an awkward position as he did on Monday last, in the senate, is a mystery to all but himself. There was apparently no particular provocation for him to make a set speech and incidentally to draw upon himself the tremendous flocks he got from Senator Jones and Tillman. It was a sort of "baby act" to complain of having been read out by the party and the caucus, when he had already done both of his own actions and words. Senator Jones simply contradicted his statements and put him down on that score and Tillman equaled him afterward. He has outlived himself from the Democratic party and the Republicans cannot quite take him to their cordial embrace without his further apostasy and open break with his old party in word as well as deed. He is an example of what becomes of a politician when he goes to the enemy's pie counter and still, while opposing nearly all party measures, poses as a member in good standing, when the party declines to accept him on the peculiar terms he publicly presents. He is in a miserable situation and he has made his position worse than it was before excepting that the recent debate clarified matters more than ever. The fact is the death of Mr. McKinley and the Booker Washington incident subsequently were great and discouraging blows for McLauren. He has apparently been in a kind of foggy bewilderment ever since, but he had, presumably, to play his hand though some of the trumps had fallen out of it. I do not know that Mr. Roosevelt is as complacent to the senator as the late President was, and so the position he was in became acute enough to make him think another demonstration necessary. But if he gets many more such dressings down as that of Monday, he will either have to go clean over to the Republicans, without more masquerading, or throw up the sponge in South Carolina.

The offer of the Republicans to take care of Senator McLauren on the committee would seem to imply that they at least are not fooled by the senator's dramatic masquerade. It would not surprise any one if McLauren never so much as seriously contended at home for re-election and that on the contrary, he will, like some other politicians, go into exile more or less profitable.

HOUSEWORK
Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhoea and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI
is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cures Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendean, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.
I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fatter than I was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to get down five or six times every day, and now I don't think of lying down through the day.
